TO: All members of the Maryland National Guard

SUBJECT: Winter Storm Jonas

On behalf of Governor Larry Hogan, our state, local officials, and the citizens of Maryland, I would like to thank you for your service during the recent record-breaking Snow Storm Jonas. Approximately 700 service members of the Maryland National Guard were activated for the state of emergency. With more than 200 vehicles, you deployed quickly to assist our neighbors in their time of need. The storm was devastating for some, but there is no doubt your efforts saved lives and eased suffering. You made it possible so the state and local first responders could do their jobs.

You have always stepped up to answer the call from our state and our nation since 1634. You have fought in the nation's wars and responded to emergencies and disasters around the world even in our own community. You are well trained, equipped, and motivated to assist our fellow citizens in times of distress. You represent the best of Maryland, and I am proud you are part of our team.

Once again, I would like to thank you and your families for your service, professionalism, and commitment.

Respectfully,

LINDA L. SINGH
Major General, MDARNG
The Adjutant General

SNOW STORM JONAS

- Maj. Gen. Linda L. Singh,
The Adjutant General of Maryland

“The Maryland National Guard is a member of the community and the ability for us to respond has never been better.”

Approximately 700 service members of the Maryland National Guard were activated to provide support to civil authorities during Maryland’s recent state of emergency.

The Maryland Guard positioned personnel and equipment at readiness centers throughout Maryland to support missions.

“The Maryland National Guard is a member of the community and the ability for us to respond has never been better,” said Maj. Gen. Linda Singh, the adjutant general of Maryland. “No one agency or level of government can do it alone, we are a team effort. A fully equipped Guard is critical in providing the essential capabilities needed to respond to and mitigate emergencies.”

In previous snowstorms, the Maryland Guard has assisted stranded motorists, worked with local law enforcement and firefighters with transportation and evacuation, distribution of supplies and search and rescue.

In 2010, during “Snowmageddon,” a Maryland National Guard soldier helped deliver a baby. The largest weather related activation for the Maryland National Guard was for Hurricane Sandy in 2012 when more than 800 service members and 200 pieces of equipment were deployed.

More recently, more than 3,200 service members from units throughout the Maryland Guard helped local law enforcement keep the peace in Baltimore during Operation Baltimore Rally. That marked the first time in nearly 50 years that the Maryland Guard mobilized for civil disturbance operations within state.

The Maryland National Guard receives its missions through the Maryland Emergency Management Agency to assist state and local emergency response organizations so they can do their jobs. The National Guard always stands ready to support the governor and citizens of Maryland.

SOLDIER

- Spc Paul Pinder,
F Co., 128th Brigade Support Battalion

“when my son gets here, I can tell him about how I helped somebody and he’ll be proud of his dad”

CARRIES MAN TO SAFETY

During the height of winter storm Jonas, as inches upon inches of snow fell, soldiers across the state of Maryland were in place and ready to help out the communities and people endangered by the blizzard. Spc. Paul Pinder, of F Co., 128th Brigade Support Battalion, was activated and deployed with members of his unit to support the Maryland State Police Department. Their role was to assist the police during emergency calls by enabling them to reach the residents of Maryland.

At home, Pinder’s girlfriend is eight months pregnant, but he came out with his unit because, “I wanted to help people,” Pinder said.

One of the calls that came into the police department was an older man who lost heat and power in his house. He was requesting help to get him from his house to his son’s house.

Pinder was in charge of the mission.

When he got to the street the man lived on, he realized it had not been plowed at all. The Humvee would have difficulties traveling down this particular street. Placing the mission first, Pinder trekked through the deep snow and found his way to the man’s house.

“He flagged me down with a light,” Pinder said. “I went up to him and he was shivering, so I gave him my cap, gloves, and jacket to stay warm.”

The man was unable to walk through the unplowed street. Pinder then decided to carry the man from his house to the vehicle. They were trying to stay positive through the storm together.

“We were encouraging each other the whole walk down,” Pinder said.

Pinder completed this mission by helping the man safely get to his son’s house. He said it made coming out in the storm worth it to help people stay safe and better the communities of Maryland.

“Maybe when my son gets here, I can tell him about how I helped somebody and he’ll be proud of his dad,” Pinder said.

Q&A

The Maryland National Guard takes great pleasure in recognizing its citizen soldiers and airmen who stand out in their military and civilian careers. This quarter, the MDNG would like to highlight Senior Airman Robin L. Brown for her professionalism as a base service specialist with the Maryland Air National Guard. She also has a love for roller derby and is a member of a group that brings joy to hospitalized children through cosplay.

Senior Airman. ROBIN BROWN<sup>L.</sup>

Guard Status:

Affiliation: Maryland Air National Guard
Unit: 175th Force Support Squadron
Air Force Specialty Code: 3MOX1 - services
Years of service: 4

Citizen Status:

Hobbies: roller derby, cosplay
Affiliation: D.C. cosplay group
Education: some college

Q: Why did you join the Maryland Air National Guard?

A: Well, my dad was prior service. He was in the Marines and the Air Force. Also, at that time, I wasn't really doing anything with my life. It was pretty much just my son and I. I was a stay-at-home mom and I thought joining would be a great opportunity for me.

I've always liked the Air Force. I wanted to stay local and close to my family. So, a friend told me about the Air National Guard. I've lived here [Baltimore] my whole life and never knew we had an Air Guard base. It seemed to fit perfectly into what I was looking for.

Q: What is your job in the Air Guard?

A: I work full time as a base service specialist at Warfield Air National Guard

Base. I cook, provide lodging, conduct physical fitness, and provide mortuary support. We are pretty flexible in services. I love my job. I've learned so much in such a short time here. I also enjoy the fact that it's not always the same thing day to day.

Q: What do you do during drill weekend?

A: I'm part of the fitness staff. I coordinate all physical fitness tests, I manage the fitness improvement program, I can bring in a nutritionist to provide information to the all of the Airmen.

Q: What do you do when you're not serving? Do you have any hobbies?

A: Yes, I enjoy participating in cosplay. It gives me a chance to bring my favorite characters to life, with my added inspiration. Cosplays is a fun family activity.

SENIOR AIRMAN ROBIN BROWN

We all work on costumes and then we go show them off at conventions.

My son likes cosplay as well. I never go to an event without him. It's definitely a way I can bond with him.

The group that I'm in is based out of D.C. and it's mixed with photographers and actual cosplayers. Every month we try to do two or three meet ups, whether we meet in a park to take photos or at an organized event, like at a children's hospital. The theme at the hospital, which is coming up in a few weeks, is Marvel super heroes. So I have to come in a Marvel super hero costume, take pictures with the kids and just act like that character. So, cosplay is not just a group of people coming together and dressing up as a character, we have an agenda and a purpose to why we dress up.

Q&A

Q: What did you do before you joined the Maryland Air National Guard?

A: Before I joined the military I did roller derby. I don't do it anymore, but I still love it. I loved the independence in it. We did everything ourselves. We built our own floors. We secured our own practice place. We raised our own money. I've always loved it, and it was fun. You get to meet a lot of different people. I've played against people from all over the world. I got to travel with the team. I got to play on the biggest derby stage ever. I went to nationals and we were ranked 13th in the world. I was a jammer, so my job was to score as many points as possible.

Q: Do you feel you've learned a few skills from playing roller derby that you've applied in the Maryland Guard?

A: Yes, definitely understanding different personalities and different walks of life. My roller derby experience really helped me with dealing with that in the military. When I went to boot camp I was 24, so I was one of the older ones in my flight. A lot of younger girls didn't grasp the concept like, 'hey, this is serious, it's about the team,' and stuff like that. So, I got a nickname – I was called 'mama Brown.'

Q: Do you consider yourself a serious person when it comes to performing your job duties in the Maryland Air National Guard?

A: Definitely. I do a lot of fitness and everybody knows that fitness is a big deal in the Air Guard, especially if your career is based on it. It could make it or break it. So, I have to remember that I'm in this job for a reason and I have to do it to the best of my abilities.

Graduation Ceremony

The Maryland National Guard Freestate Challenge Academy held their course completion ceremony for the 22-week residency phase for 107 cadets of class #45 at the Aberdeen Proving Ground's post theater on Dec. 12, 2015.

The Academy is a two-phased 17-month intervention program for underemployed, drug-free, "at-risk" high school dropouts from the state of Maryland between 16-18 years of age. Following graduation from the resident phase, the cadets are mentored for an additional 12 months, during which time they are placed into jobs, continue their higher education, or vocational trades training or enter the military.

"Whether you realize it or not, you have turned a major corner on this journey called life," said Lt. Governor Boyd Rutherford the keynote speaker to the cadets. "You have been exposed to things and learned lessons of life that will keep you in good stead for the rest of your lives if you have the discipline to observe them."

The mission of the Academy is to intervene in and reclaim the lives of at-risk youth and to produce graduates with the values, skills, education and self-discipline needed to succeed as adults.

The students were brought into a structured and highly disciplined quasi-military academic setting that builds confidence and self-esteem to become productive and contributing members of our society. Cadets attend academic classes to prepare them for the test for the General Education Development (GED) credential and Maryland High School Diploma. The program is currently funded by National Guard Bureau and the State of Maryland (75/25 percent split).

This year marked the 22nd anniversary of the program and has been another extremely successful year for the academy. More than 4,000 cadets have graduated since the Academy's beginning in 1993.

MEDICS PRACTICE IMMEDIATE CARE PROCEDURES ON CADAVERS, LEARNING TO SAVE HUMAN LIVES

After finding black and white marks throughout the cadaver's internal organs, service members discuss whether this could have been an indication of cancer.

Service members wore protective medical equipment to reduce their exposure to formaldehyde, which is a known carcinogenic and has the ability to cause respiratory reactions, skin irritation, nausea and other health hazards.

The 104th Area Support Medical Company, Maryland Army National Guard, and members of the 175th Medical Group, Maryland Air National Guard, conducted immediate care training on human cadavers at the University of Maryland School of Medicine in Baltimore on Feb 6, 2016.

A service member examines a port after removing it from a cadaver's chest. The use of a port reduces the number of injection sites a patient will need during lengthy medical procedures, such as when receiving chemotherapy.

Healthcare specialists practice laceration repairs on a cadaver. Sutures – or stitches – can be made using different types of thread, such as catgut, silk or a synthetic-like nylon.
